INDIAN KNOWLEDGE SYSTEM(IKS)

India is land of diverse culture and language. The country believes in unity in diversity with the emergence of Vedic Civilization. Sanskrit emerges as the language of the royal court and literary activities. In course of time other regional languages flourished in various parts of India taking Inspiration from Sanskrit. The Independent India has witnessed the emergence of number of linguistic states based on language. The UGC, the highest body to formulate guidelines in the domain of Higher Education takes care for the promotion of regional languages. The UGC extended the financial support to various Government Agencies which deal with the promotion of language-based research activities. The branches of Centre for Indian and Foreign Languages(CIFL) have been established at different locations of the country to expedite the research activities. The National Linguistic Association has been organizing annual conferences for the promotion of language and linguistic. The research in regional languages is promoted for the promotion of the same. The Sahitya Academy has been established at New Delhi for the development of the Regional Languages and translation works have conducted where praiseworthy regional literary works are translated in other languages of India. The college has three language disciplines i.e. English, Bengali and Sanskrit and the faculty members take initiative for organizing different short-term courses for enhancing the spoken ability of the students. These courses organized by various language-based disciplines disseminate knowledge among the students about the languages and promote the cause of spoken ability of the students. The Assam University, Silchar to which the college is affiliated introduces a paper named AEC(English/Bengali) for providing students technical knowledge about the students. The Disciplines like Philosophy, History, Education have incorporated the various topics in the syllabi of under graduate levels that highlight the true character of Indian Knowledge system right from the ancient age to the present day. These topics are covered in the classroom lectures which provide a glimpse of the Indian knowledge system through various ages which creates a favourable atmosphere to have a distinct knowledge of India's contemporary Culture, Tradition, Society, Institution and Education.
